GIRL SEIZES DOG FROM MADDENED HORSE'S NECK

MISTRESS SAVES
PET FROM DEATH
Woman Refuses to Let Men Slay Bull
Terrier.

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—With rare coolness and presence of mind Miss A. M. Wilson, a wealthy young woman stopping at the Carlton Hotel in this city averted a tragedy this morning by seizing her pet bull terrier and dragging him away from a runaway horse, onto the throat of which in frenzied rage he had fastened his teeth. The accident occurred about 9:30 o'clock on Shattuck avenue, between Center street and Allison way.

What prompted the dog to attack the horse still remains a mystery, but for a few moments the business portion of town was thrown into a fever of excitement over the affair.

Miss Wilson walked down town this morning, leading her brother's pet dog by a chain. While threading her way among the teams which crowd the avenue at that time of the day she chanced to pass in front of a horse belonging to Martin S. Foss of the Fred Foss Lumber Company, which was standing in front of the Schmidt-Skilling real estate office.

able to give a clear and concise explanation, but according to Miss Wilson's account, the horse began to stamp its foot and toss its head violently while she was passing in front of it. The action of the animal seemed to alarm the dog. First he tried to get out of the way, but upon the horse starting to run over the dog and his mistress, the faithful pup sprang

CANADA WILL APOLOGIZE TO MIKADO FOR RIOTS

Japanese Officials Expect Peaceful Outcome of Recent Attack on Orientals.

TOKIO, Sept. 10.—The Foreign Office has received a despatch from the Japanese consul-general at Ottawa saying that the Canadian government will express its regret for the occurrence at Vancouver and take steps to prevent further trouble. An official of the Foreign Office said to the Associated Press: "We have the utmost confidence in the Canadian government, as we also have in that of America. Commissioner Ishii's despatch says that the disturbance will soon be quieted and that there is no reason to expect its repetition. Our information is that this outbreak like that at Bellingham and others elsewhere, is the result of the Korean League's anti-Japanese agitation, created by false and exaggerated reports concerning conditions in Korea, and the attitude and sentiment of Japan. The Foreign Office is not disturbed by the Vancouver affair and is quite confident that everything will be done to protect the Japanese."

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Miss M. P. Wood, 30 years old, living with her parents at 1780 Sutter street, committed suicide this morning by gas asphyxiation. Miss Wood has been ill since the earthquake and yesterday was in a despondent mood. Last night she retired late and attached a tube to a gas jet, putting the other end in her mouth. As she was in the habit of rising late, the family did not discover her death until 11 o'clock this morning.

The Dominion is responsible for the $50,000 damage done by the mob. The chief of police has sworn in 100 special constables. The militia will be called out if there is a sign of further disturbance.

Tribune's Fight Service Eclipses All Records

THE TRIBUNE's extra on the Gans-Britt fight yesterday afternoon eclipsed all records for rapid news-gathering and publication. In less than eight minutes after the referee had proclaimed Gans winner at the ringside in San Francisco THE TRIBUNE's extra, containing the full account of the fight by rounds, was on the streets of Oakland, 16,300 copies of the extra were sold in Oakland, Alameda, San Francisco and Berkeley.

PERFECT BULLETINS.
The bulletins of the big fight, given by THE TRIBUNE in Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley far outdid any attempt made by this paper's rivals. The news of the fight was telephoned directly from the ringside to THE TRIBUNE, and was immediately posted in the three cities mentioned.

Five thousands person eagerly watched the bulletins in front of the Broadway office of THE TRIBUNE, and mingled with the cheers for the victor were enthusiastic cheers for THE TRIBUNE and its excellent news service.

The crowd which gathered at King & Halton's in Alameda yesterday afternoon blocked all traffic along Park street while THE TRIBUNE fight returns were being posted. It was necessary to rope off the sidewalk so that pedestrians could pass. The bulletins were posted in Alameda at the same time the Oakland announcements were being written, and when the result was flashed on the screen there were loud cheers from the crowd. It is estimated that 1000 persons watched the Alameda bulletins.

IN BERKELEY.
In Berkeley it was the same. Hundreds crowded the street in front of THE TRIBUNE office, and were afforded a graphic account of the contest almost simultaneously with the occurrence of every blow. THE TRIBUNE is always ahead.

BLOODHOUNDS ON TRAIL OF WOMAN'S ASSASSIN

Thug Shoots Navy Lieutenant's Wife Through Heart After Victim's Desperate Fight.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Mary Lawless Rorschach, wife of Lieutenant Frank Rorschach, U. S. N., and sister of Joseph T. Lawless, former secretary of the Commonwealth of Virginia, was murdered in her home, 322 Park avenue, Parkview, Portsmouth, by an unknown burglar early today. She was shot through the heart with her own pistol, taken from her hand by the burglar after she had fired twice upon him through an open door leading into the kitchen, where he was cornered.

Whether the murderer was a negro or white man is unknown. He escaped, dropping the pistol as he fled from the house.

BLOODHOUNDS ON TRAIL.
Bloodhounds brought from Portsmouth secured a scent, but soon lost it. Mrs. Rorschach's husband is on the cruiser Tennessee with Admiral Evans' fleet off Provincetown, Mass. The shots awakened the oldest boy, Frank Jr., and the mother cried to the boy upstairs: "Frank, somebody has taken my pistol and shot me. Go quickly for help."

The boy rushed for help, but when he returned with neighbors his mother was dead.

Mrs. Rorschach with her money tied in her hand the burglar was in the kitchen in the dark. She evidently heard the man and fired in his direction. Both bullets fired by the woman were found in the wall of the kitchen.

HOODLUMS WRECK STORE, ATTACK AND ROB OWNER

Grab Chain and Locket From Proprietor After Hitting Him With Brick and Smashing Windows.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Two hoodlums entered the store of Fitz Retzoff at 134 Polson street about 9 o'clock last night and after assaulting the proprietor, grabbed his chain and locket and made off up the street.

Retzoff was about to close his place of business for the night when the two men entered. They spoke to him politely at first and then without warning began to demolish things. They first smashed three of the store windows, and when Retzoff remonstrated with them, they hit him in the back with a brick and one of them made off with his chain and locket. Retzoff followed them to the street and fired a shot to attract the attention of a policeman.

Officer Flannery responded but could find no trace of the culprits. Retzoff values the chain at $35, and the locket which contained a diamond, at $30. He will get warrants today for the arrest of the men, both of whom he knows.

SCALDING HOT MORTAR FALLS IN MAN'S FACE

(Special to THE TRIBUNE.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—A bucket of scalding hot mortar, accidentally dropped by a hod carrier, fell on the face of William Nickels, 596 Potrero avenue, today while he was at work on the Santa Marion building at California and Drumm streets. His face was badly scalded, but surgeons hope to save his eyes.

Nickels, who is an elevator contractor, was working on the shaft and chanced to put his head into the opening at the same time as a hod carrier spilled a bucket of mortar down the shaft from the floor above him.

He received the entire contents in the face and would have fallen to the floor but he had not been saved by a companion. A bystander removed the mortar from his face and he was taken to the Harbor Emergency Hospital.

AUTO BECOMES POLICE PATROL

Befuddled Individual Falls Asleep in Machine and is Driven to Prison.

A party of fashionably dressed young people drove up to Breuners furniture store late Saturday afternoon, leaving their auto standing in front, went within to make some purchases. They were hardly inside when a very much befuddled individual made the perilous turn at an adjacent corner and halted by a lamp post just behind the auto. He surveyed the spacious tonneau for a moment, then, with an air of having an inspiration, he reached cautiously over, grasped the door, and drew himself triumphantly inside, lapsing promptly into profound slumber.

When the members of the party had completed their purchases they were astonished to find that their touring car had been converted into a dormitory. No amount of persuasion could induce the new occupant to relinquish his title or, indeed, to take any notice of the claimants at all, so as a last resource the male members of the party called a policeman, and changing the auto for the nonce from a dormitory to a patrol wagon, drove the slumberer in state to the city prison. There he gave his name as Joseph Wright and said that he is a local contractor.

FEELS SURE OF STRIKE SUCCESS

Commercial Telegraphers Awaiting Result of Directors' Meeting Today.

WEST OAKLAND, Sept. 10.—"I am in receipt of encouraging advice from the East and I feel sure that the telegraphers strike will be settled within the next ten days," said A. W. Copps, deputy national president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America. "The settlement of the telegraphers strike will be a landmark in the history of the labor movement, as they are waiting to hear from the East where the board of directors of the union is holding a meeting today for the purpose of devising ways and means for an amicable settlement of the telegraphers strike. The strikers declare that the present battle will soon be brought to a close."

NEW METHOD OF BUILDING

A. G. Bell Thinks His Discovery Will Revolutionize Construction Methods.

SYDNEY, C. E. L.—"I am glad to welcome you here on what I believe to be a historic occasion, the introduction to the world of a new species of architecture, unique in itself and in its application."

In these words Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, welcomed 400 persons who gathered at Lookout Mountain, near Bellingham, summer residence of Dr. Bell. Lookout is the summit of a small mountain. On it Dr. Bell has erected a tower built on the tetrahedral principle. This is the first structure in the world erected on this principle, which Dr. Bell believes is destined to have great effect on building.

BELL'S DISCOVERY.
The principle was discovered by Dr. Bell while experimenting with kites. He used tetrahedral cell kites and is now preparing to build a flying machine on this principle. Cells for kites were built of light strips of wood and it occurred to Dr. Bell if a few were made of metal, something use it would result as a test he built a tower.

The inscription on the plate in the tower base reads:
The outlook tower of Belton Brough, the first iron structure built of tetrahedral cells.—P. H. Baldwin, Engineer.

WEIGHS FIVE TONS.
Baldwin is assistant to Dr. Bell. The tower is a giant tripod tetrahedral and built of galvanized iron half an inch in diameter, and four feet in length. The tower is seventy feet in height, vertical and weighs five tons.

The inventor says a structure built on this principle is extremely light and has great strength each cell reinforcing the other. No skilled labor is required in the work. Tetrahedral cells compare as units with brick in building. The principle, it is said, would be useful, especially in towers, arches and trusses.

ANOTHER VARIETY.
The farmer met his son at the station. "Back from college, eh, boy?" he drawled.
"Yes, dad," replied the youth. "Glad to get back. Been digging up Greek roots all the season."
The old farmer went over to the hardware store and bought a grubbing hoe.
"All right, my boy," he announced as he handed over the hoe, "you can dig the young overgrown during the summer by digging up dogwood and sassafras roots."—Chicago News.

CLAUS SPRECKELS DOES NOT REMEMBER HAVEMEYER SALE

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Claus Spreckels was placed on the stand before Commissioner D. D. Richard to testify in the investigation of the sugar trust this afternoon.

"Mr. Spreckels," asked Attorney Hutchinson, "your name is Claus?"
"That's it," replied Spreckels, "in German it's 'Claus' given the full German name."

"You have been in the sugar refining business at least twenty-five years," suggested the attorney.

Spreckels' counsel, Attorney Morrison, objected to the next question, "You were interested in the California Sugar Refining Company?"

"Yes, sir," replied Spreckels.

"There was an American company at that time?"

"I think so."

"Mr. Havemeyer's company?"

"Mr. Havemeyer was a competitor, was he not?"

"Well, I think so."

"The competition was so keen that you practically operated at a loss for a time, was it not?"

SAYS RAILROAD DISCRIMINATES

Commercial Travelers Bring Question Before Nebraska Railway Commission.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 10.—Claiming that they represent 42,000 members of the United Commercial Travelers, J. W. Nation and F. W. Hawken of Fremont today charged the Union Pacific Railroad with gross discrimination in passenger traffic, and demanded the State Railway commission to make an immediate investigation.

They allege that the Union Pacific has barred local passengers from trains No. 1, 2, 7 and 8 between Council Bluffs and the Wyoming State line.

Hawken and Nation submit that they were refused tickets and were prevented from going from Council Bluffs to Fremont.

The railway officials claim that the interstate traffic demands that the local passengers be barred.

A hearing will be granted.

PRAYER SAVES FROM DEATH

Once Rich Farmer Finds Salvation Army Better Than Suicide's Grave.

KANSAS CITY.—A farmer from northern Missouri, who sold his land and spent the money for whisky came to Kansas City yesterday with the intention of ending his life. He bought arsenic with his last few cents and then went through the streets trying to get up courage to swallow it. While so engaged, he remembered the Salvation Army's suicide bureau.

"I was a prosperous farmer six years ago," he told Major Arthur Cass. "But I formed the whisky habit and then I mortgaged my farm again and again until it was gone. I decided today that there is no need for me to live longer."

"Did you ever attend church?" Major Cass asked.

"Yes, was a church member once, but that was many years ago."

"Well, we will just pray some, anyhow," Major Cass said.

There was a religious song, too, and more encouraging words. Then the farmer said that he was more hopeful and that he would make a new start in life.

"Have you money to buy something to eat?" the major asked.

"Not a penny," was the reply.

"All right," said the Salvation Army man, "you can live here in the citadel until you are 'straightened out.'"

SAVES DOG FROM A MAD HORSE

savagely at the horse and snapped his jaws on the throat of the animal. When the horse became wildly frightened and dropping the chain by which she held the dog, she fled to a place of safety. In another moment the horse had broken from its fastening, and with the now thoroughly aroused bull terrier still clinging to its throat with a vice-like grip, he leaped madly over the curb and fell prostrate on the sidewalk in the midst of a crowd of onlookers. Had the horse gone five feet further it would have crashed into a fine plate glass window in the rear of the building.

GIRL SHOWS PLUCK.
While the excited crowd was throwing stones and pieces of coal and yelling "kill the dog," plucky little Miss Wilson dashed into the thick of the fray and by main strength compelled the enraged dog to loosen his hold on the throat of the horse. Such a display of heroism quite won the crowd and the cries of "kill the dog" were changed to murmurs of approval for the fearless action of the girl.

Poss, to whom the horse belonged, was at first inclined to be uncompromising about the whole matter and stated that he would sue the young woman for the damage done to his horse and rig. Poss, Miss Wilson and the dog before Sergeant Lee, where Poss and Miss Wilson gave their versions of the accident and attempted to adjust the matter.

Miss Wilson stated that the dog belonged to her and that she would rather settle the matter without taking it into court. Even then Poss and other bystanders who had witnessed the accident insisted upon having the dog killed, but with rare tact and womanly diplomacy Miss Wilson turned from their purpose and proposed that since no one had been bitten or seriously injured that she be allowed to pay the damage and let the matter go.

Miss Wilson was very anxious to settle the matter without crying it into court. She stated that her brother was a business man in San Francisco who made his home in Berkeley.

EX-POLICEMAN BADLY HURT

He was knocked unconscious by the fall.

Friends carried him to his rooms at 730 Franklin street, where a surgeon was sent for to examine his injuries.

JAIL FARE IS HARD ON GLASS

Convicted Magistrate Comes to Court Showing Effect of Close Confinement.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Louis Glass came in from the county jail this morning expecting to have a date set for his trial on one of the remaining indictments. Judge Lawlor, before he was informed of the Jewish holidays, had set today as the time but as he was not in town, Glass, after driving about between the temple and the sheriff's office, was taken back to his prison home.

In the custody of Deputy Sheriff Holland he made the trip in an automobile procured at his own expense. A week in confinement has not altered his personal appearance except that he is a shade whiter than he was before his conviction.

He is also a little thinner.

As no judge could be found to continue the case, Glass will be brought to court again tomorrow, when the formal order will be made postponing the trial until after the United Railroads cases shall have been determined.

SOFT DRINKS MAY BE DEADLY

Eastern Food Commissioner Shows That Cheap Fountain Stuff is Adulterated.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Recent investigations by agents of the State Dairy and Food Bureau have confirmed the suspicion of Commissioner Foust that the so-called "soft" drinks sold in many sections of Pennsylvania are not free from adulteration. In Philadelphia, the commissioner says, scores of cheap fountains have been out in operation, largely for the purpose of catching the trade of the children.

"The stuff sold at the fountains cost the patrons from a penny to three cents a glass and is heavily and dangerously adulterated," said Mr. Foust. "Lemonade is sold as lemonade at the same cheap rate to little customers. Both the 'soft' water and the lemonade are heavily charged with dangerous adulterants. They do not instantly kill, but they poison the system and help to shorten the lives of the customers."

SHOULD REGULATE.
"It should be apparent to all who give the matter the least attention," the commissioner added, "that the pure food laws need to be supplemented by a properly framed act regulating the sale of non-alcoholic and non-toxic drinks within the commonwealth. It is quite as important that the people have pure drinks as they have food."

"The quantity of drink consumed in this State in the course of a year, and especially during the summer months, is simply enormous. To poison the consumer by adulterating his drink is quite as heinous an offense as the poisoning of the individual and the happiness of their food."

Attorney Has Hearing on Bribery Charge Set for Next Thursday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—The trial of Attorney T. L. Ford will begin Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The prosecution has selected indictment No. 517, the one in which Calhoun, Ford, Abbott and Mullaly are accused of bribing former Supervisor Thomas Loneygan, upon which to go to trial.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because it is deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys become diseased and blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

TEACHING BIRDS TO SING POPULAR AIRS

Whether the public is beginning to tire of the sweet strains of the nature put into the robust throats of the birds, or whether a desire is felt to immortalize certain popular airs, which every little street urchin shrilly whistles, is not clear. That the training of birds to sing popular tunes is becoming one of the most important and arduous features of the breeders' activities.

With an ordinary life or flute the teacher sits down in front of the cage in which the feathered pet is housed and plays over the bars of a popular tune. Many days elapse before the feathered songster takes the least notice; he almost bursts his little throat in an endeavor to drown the sound with the gushing song of the free woodlands.

BIRD APPEARS TO LISTEN.

But at last, as the music is continued and the same air is repeated, the bird will turn its head and appear to listen. As soon as it becomes familiar with the notes it will sound a few of them, tentatively, for this is new and strange music and the pupil is just a little suspicious of it. The teacher is constantly at hand, however, to prompt the bird, and soon it warbles the air through with absolute accuracy. Having once acquired the song, the bird is as proud of it as a child is of a new toy. It will sing nothing else until it is taught another tune.

It is peculiar that a bird can never sing a bar of a song from the middle or end; the tune must be warbled straight through. If anything occurs to break off the flood of melody it cannot take up the tune again where it was interrupted. It must start over again and do it from the first note.

CLKS TO PLAY WINTER GAMES

College Town Members Expect to Have Crack Baseball Team in Field.

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—Elks of this city will play baseball this winter. They are now busy engaged in getting their forces together and expect to have one of the crack baseball teams of the bay cities. Manager Bachelder has the work of organizing in hand and is putting the local Elks through their paces each afternoon endeavoring to pick out the most likely material. Among those who will be all probability make the team are Gus Volmer, chief of the Berkeley police, and Charles Mills, the real estate man.

The team includes some of the fastest players who have figured in amateur ball around the bay, many of them being college stars.

The battery will be Jimmy Schaffer and Ben McCoy. Schaffer is a variety catcher for three years and with McCoy did the battery work for Berkeley high for two years. The infield will consist of McFarland, first; Haggerty, second; Hester, third; and Miller, shortstop.

Hester and McFarland are very brilliant players and would be stars on any team. Hester has been playing third base for the San Francisco team of the State League and ranks as the best infielder in that team. Miller and Haggerty are consistent players, the former being the best stickler on the team. Two ex-college stars, King Sweazy and Tyrell Hamlin, both of whom have captured their teams, will be taken care of by Homer Sweazy, who is an amateur of ability.

MID-WINTER LEAGUE.

The team has been organized to play the different Elks teams in the State and a mid-winter league will be formed from the Berkeley Elks. Oakland and San Francisco Elks will also be played with the Vallejo and San Jose Elks. In the spring they plan to play games with California, Stanford and other good amateur teams, after which they will make a trip to Los Angeles and San Jose. Yesterday they played the Martinez Brothers, and next Monday they will play against the Alameda Elks, who are the champions.

Seeking Wedding Gifts Thief Scares Women

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—With a bride-to-be and two women friends huddled in a room seeking wedding presents was the experience here of Miss Hope Mayne, now Mrs. Arthur Taylor, and intimate women friends the night before the nuptials.

The rich gems and expensive bric-a-brac from the groom and friends to the popular bride were resting on a table in the private dining room of the E. H. Hotel. The bride and her friends were startled by the noise of the prowler who started the women that it was hours before they were composed. Finally a young man in the house was notified, who turned on the electric lights over all the residence and the marauder was frightened away without securing any booty.

Good Men Should Go Armed, Says Judge

"I advise every good man to carry a revolver after dark. In order that he may shoot burglars and other thugs whom he may encounter."

This is the dictum of Judge Tappan of Alameda who occupied the bench in Police Court this morning. During the absence of Police Judge Mortimer Smith, the advice, while delivered in a general form, was directed in particular to Michael G. Giamozza, who was in the Police Court to answer a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Police Judge continued Judge Tappan, when I find a man carrying a gun, I want him to show me that he is a good man otherwise I will be inclined to believe that he should be classed with the burglars and thugs. I will give you until tomorrow to show me in which class you belong."

ACADEMY HAS AN INCREASED ATTENDANCE

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—St. Joseph's Academy of Peralta Park, has opened for the fall term with an increased attendance, and a few more branches added to the curriculum of the classical and business departments of the college. The faculty remains practically the same, excepting the change necessitated by the death of Brother Genebers, former director, whose place has been taken by Brother Michael. Excepting in this, the executive department, all other departments remain as heretofore.

WHILE FAMILY SLEEP THIEVES LOOT HOME

Burglars forced open the rear door of the residence of A. H. Schueter, 530 Twenty-fifth street, about a o'clock yesterday morning, and ransacked the house from top to bottom. Jewelry, cash, and a value of $300 were taken by the pillagers, who made their exit without attracting the attention of the sleeping family.

No clue thus far has been obtained to the identity of the thieves.

CITY WANTS CONTROL OF BAY FRONT ALAMEDA FEARS RAILWAYS WILL ENCIRCLE ENTIRE SHORE

ALAMEDA, Sept. 10.—The entire southern shore of this city is now controlled by four firms, according to statements made by members of the council, and the only piece of property, with tide land rights for sale, is the strip on which the city has an option and is known as the Taylor and Dunn tracts. It is the belief of the members of the council that the Southern Pacific and other railroads control of the property and that if the bonds for the purchase of land on the water front are not voted that the entire south shore of the city will fall into the hands of the corporations.

STILL UNDECIDED.

It has not been definitely decided to purchase the Dunn and Taylor property but the bonds specify that the sum of $125,000 shall be expended for the purchase of a park and playground.

WANT CONTROL OF BAY.

Members of the council are making it an argument that the city should control all the tide land possible and state that with the Taylor and Dunn property in the possession of the city there would be no fear of any of the railroads ever encircling the city so there would be no release. A committee is to be appointed to select other available sites where the playground and park might be located.

SAYS SPOUSE DROVE HER FROM HOME POLICE PROTECT WOMAN WHILE SHE GETS BABE

ALAMEDA, Sept. 10.—Mrs. E. J. Ernest, the wife of a furniture dealer at 2412 Central avenue, last night solicited the home and set her two-year-old baby. She had been compelled to leave home by her husband. She went to the house and after her husband had no explanation of the trouble.

Fast Grounder Breaks Nose of Ball Player

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—Roy Reed, who plays second base on the "Vineyard" team, received a fast grounder in the face yesterday while practicing and as a result sustained a fracture of the nose.

Reed had just returned to college and was engaged in infidel practice with the team when he was struck full in the face by a fast grounder, which took a false bound. The blow was severe enough to tell him, and at first it was thought that he was severely injured, but a cursory examination revealed no injuries beyond a bad bruise.

At a later examination, however, it was found that his nose was fractured. The fracture, while not severe, will keep him out of the game for two or three weeks.

14 PASSENGERS HAVE LATE SPECIAL CAR

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—Fourteen late residents of this city compelled the officials of the Oakland Traction Company to furnish them with a special car to bring them to Berkeley, after the party had been carried to Oakland, following a dispute with conductors on the Telegraph avenue line.

The fourteen passengers were informed at Telegraph and Bancroft avenues late in the evening that the cars went no further, cutting off by nearly a quarter of a mile the end of the line. The passengers got out, and, after trying to take passage on six late cars, which were not to run through to the terminal, decided to ride to the car barn and make complaint. The fourteen boarded the first available car and on reaching the car barn laid their case before an inspector. A special car was furnished for the run to University and Shattuck avenues.

Active Daylight Thieves Get $300 Dog, Souvenir Spoons and Revolver.

Daylight robbers took advantage of the holiday yesterday to ply their trade with unusual activity. Early yesterday morning a party of four, armed with a Smith & Wesson revolver, a pair of goggles and two spark-plugs were stolen from an automobile belonging to Eugene Brock of the Berrier-Rock Realty Company, of Berkeley, while the machine was standing at the corner of Forty-first street and Telegraph avenue.

Soon afterward Walter Buehling of 1112 Market street complained that a gold mounted buggy whip had been stolen from his buggy at the corner of Fourteenth and Clay streets.

$300 DOG STOLEN.

Next H. E. Hatta of 911 Thirty-seventh street reported that dog thieves had visited his place while he was away for a short time during the noon hour and had taken away a black cocker spaniel, which he values at $300.

IS FINED $300 FOR SELLING LIQUOR

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—Charles Beniger, the West Berkeley saloonman convicted last Thursday in Justice Edgar's court of violating town ordinance No. 480-A, which prohibits the sale of liquor in the college town, was today brought up for sentence and fined $300 or ninety days in the county jail. Bender's trial was notable from the evidence produced against him, and the accountants of a business, together with several cases of beer and whisky, and placed on display at the town hall for the edification of the general public and the jury. When brought up for sentence the motion for a new trial was denied.

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—Under the supervision of Mrs. Henry Seekamp, a prominent society woman of North Berkeley, a pretentious "Children's Night" will be given at the "Harvest Festival," which St. Joseph's Church of this city will give in the early autumn.

Features calculated to bring joy to the hearts of the little ones and make the grown folks imagine themselves children again will be originated by the generous patroness, among these being an old-fashioned Maypole dance participated in by little tots in fancy costume.

Miss Laura Colburn, the soprano of St. Joseph's Church choir, will sing children's old-time songs. The many friends of Mrs. Seekamp have been pleased to learn that she has secured this talented girl to participate in the "children's night."

ALAMEDA CO. WINS FIRST PRIZE AT THE STATE FAIR

Also Secures Gold Medal for Best Exhibit of All Counties There Represented-- Stearns Returns.

A gold medal and first prize $500 was awarded Alameda county yesterday by the judges for having the best county exhibit in the annual State Agricultural Fair, held at Sacramento.

Edwin Stearns, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who went to Sacramento to August 30 to install the exhibits from this county, and who also was a delegate to the Irrigation Congress as a representative of Alameda county, City of Oakland, Chamber of Commerce and California Promotion committee, returned this morning more than pleased with Alameda's showing and success. He spent nine-tenths of his time in the Alameda department of the Fair.

"The Alameda county exhibits," said Secretary Stearns today, "required three times more space than was used by any other county, with the exception of course, of the home county, Sacramento. The Alameda county commissioners, knowing that thousands of visitors from all parts of the world would be in Sacramento, made a special effort to have a varied exhibit, showing the infinite diversity of products Alameda county can lay claim to from agriculture, horticulture and manufacturing standpoint."

"More than 10,000 people, the largest attendance in its history, went through the different turnstiles of the Fair last Friday evening. The Tabernacle choir of Salt Lake, Utah, was one of the main causes of this great outpouring of humanity."

BEST FAIR IN 18 YEARS.

Secretary J. A. Filcher and B. F. Rush say that the present agricultural fair is the best in its history. San Diego, San Bernardino, Riverside, Ventura, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara counties, however, did not send any exhibits.

W. D. Nichols, the fruit processor for the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, is Col. E. C. Alameda who left yesterday for Sacramento. The many fruits and flowers processed by Nichols are greatly admired. For his success in this line he is, in Secretary Stearns' estimation, deserving of a special prize.

Of its own members, individual exhibitors, Stearns thinks that twenty or twenty-five at least will take medals or diplomas. The fair closes next Saturday. All the Alameda county exhibits will then be carefully packed and shipped to Idaho Park.

Taylor Names Health Board to Barbarians

Two Former Members and Three Other Physicians Formally Appointed.

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Mayor Taylor this morning formally appointed the new board of health. They are: Dr. T. G. McConkey, Dr. Guy B. Manning, Dr. Thomas W. Huntington, Dr. William Ophuis and Dr. Dudley Tait.

The two first named physicians are already members of the board. The other three are medical men prominent in the profession in this city.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors this morning Dr. Franklin Oliver asked that an electric light be placed at the intersection of East Fourteenth street and Eden Park avenue. In support of his application he made the following showing:

Concern Earns $2100 Last Month and Saves on Municipal Lighting.

ALAMEDA, Sept. 10.—A complete statement, showing the earnings and the expenses of the municipal electric light plant, will be issued by the electricity commission for the purpose of getting the citizens to vote for the amount to be expended on the plant should the bond election carry on the 21st of the month. Last month the plant earned about $2100. The city lighting for the month cost $212. Under private contract it would have cost $2000.

It is the intention to print a pamphlet which will show that the plant will be able to pay the interest on all the bonds for ten years and will also pay a large portion of the principal out of the earnings.

BERKELEY, Sept. 10.—Another large pumping plant is to be installed by the People's Water Company at its station on University avenue between Shattuck and Grove street. It will be used for the purpose of pumping a larger supply of water from the wells at Alviso, 33 miles distant from this city. The water is to be pumped into the Berryman reservoir and will then be distributed to all portions of the city.

As soon as the new pump is installed, which will be within a few days, the water will be shut off at Lake Temescal, which is now supplying the upper eastern portion of the city.

Last Saturday Health Officer J. J. Benton visited the reservoirs and sources of supply for Berkeley and he found them all to be in a good condition. Lake Temescal is now low and the residents in the upper eastern portion of the city will be supplied with water from Wildcat canyon or Alviso.

Newark Fiesta Closes With Brilliant Ball

NEWARK, September 10.—The street fair carnival and fiesta for this little city of glory last night was a blaze of light and color. The attractions of the day were many, but the chief event was the spectacle of two thousand people witnessing the swimming match between two expert and athletic girls in a contest covering eighty yards distance. This was the most entertaining and exciting affair of the day and the result was the more happy in being a tie. The contestants were Miss Emma Wales and Miss Kate Delaney, and they furnished exciting moments for themselves and the vast throng of merry-makers. Strife as each fair contestant could, neither one could outpace the other through the clear water, and when the goal was reached the two athletic young women were so tightly bunched that the judges were unable to name a winner, and the match was pronounced a tie. The people of Newark are congratulating themselves today on the success of the celebration in general. COMMITTEES. Services at Synagogue and Temple Close With Prayer and Thanksgiving.

New Year's services at the First Hebrew Synagogue and the Beth Jacob Temple were brought to close today with prayer and thanksgiving. The Rev. Dr. M. Friedlander presided over the services at the Hebrew Synagogue, where an elaborate musical program was rendered by an augmented choir. The Rev. Ephraim Brosin of New York officiated at the services in the Beth Jacob Temple, where he delivered an interesting address before a large congregation of orthodox Jews.

WOMAN LAWYER APPLIES LASH FOR HAYWARD

Horsewhips Rancher in Presence of His Wife Who is Suing for Divorce.

SANTA ROSA, Sept. 10.—Wielding a horsewhip as surely as a man, Mrs. Frances G. Martin, woman attorney, lashed Jonathan Rayner on a public road. He is a prominent rancher. The affair is the latest and most sensational development of a divorce case of which Attorney Frances Martin is the attorney. Rayner is being sued for divorce and the case has attracted attention through the prominence of the parties. Mrs. Rayner yesterday, accompanied by her lawyer, drove to the Rayner ranch to see her children. On the Forestville road they met Rayner, who, surmising their mission, turned and ran down the road ahead of them. For a time the race went neck and neck. Then, seeing that he could not win, Rayner jumped upon the back of the buggy. Mrs. Martin promptly ordered him to get out. He refused. Then she applied the horsewhip with all of the vigor of her athletic arm. Rayner was vanquished after he had ridden about 150 yards and jumped from the buggy. Later in the day there was another encounter. Mrs. Rayner and the victorious attorney called to interview a witness. Rayner was present and insisted upon listening to the conversation. Attorney Martin ordered him off. An arrest may follow the horsewhipping affair, as Rayner has threatened to place a charge of battery against Mrs. Martin.

FAKE HUNTER'S CATCH UNLICENSED SALOONMAN

SANTA ROSA, Sept. 10.—P. Patrini has been selling liquor at Hilton, in this county, without the formality of taking out a license. (Sunday) he made the mistake of furnishing liquor to officers of the law when they called at his place and requested it. He was arrested as soon as the officers had secured the evidence they required, and brought to this city. Justice Atchison was called from his home and convened court. Patrini entered a plea of guilty, and paid a fine of $50. Game Warden J. C. Ingalls and Constable Ben H. Barnes were the officers who made the arrest. Disguised as hunters, they called at Patrini's cabin and called for liquor. Without question, the proprietor produced the liquor.

LOSES RIGHT FOOT AND TOES OF LEFT ONE

REDDING, Sept. 10.—Ed Laub lost one foot and a goodly portion of the other as he tumbled from a passenger train today. He was traveling from Redding to Los Angeles. The train was moving rapidly when he got off backward, and, striking the ground, rolled under the wheels. His right leg was crushed above the ankle and all the toes on his left foot were severed. He was brought to the county hospital at this place yesterday morning. Laub is a lumberman who had been at work in the Driggs mill. He will survive his injuries.

TRAFFIC ASSOCIATION ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 10.—The California Association of Traffic Agents met yesterday at the Potter Hotel and elected officers for the ensuing year. Henry Avila of the Union Pacific was elected president to succeed E. E. Wade, who has been president for two terms, and who did not wish the nomination again. The association elected Jack Bate of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas road at Los Angeles to membership, so as to give the south representation in the association. They were elected first vice-president, George A. Rible was chosen second secretary and treasurer to succeed himself. The membership of the organization now numbers 301. It was decided to hold next year's meeting in conjunction with Los Angeles at Fresno and to make a three days' event of it.

EXCUSES HIMSELF FROM FEAST AND DISAPPEARS

SAN JOSE, Sept. 10.—The San Jose police are endeavoring to unravel the mystery surrounding the mysterious disappearance of A. J. Hubert of San Francisco ten days ago. Hubert, who lives at 1791 Turk street, came to San Jose in company with some friends on the day of his disappearance. The party arranged for a dinner at the La Mole House. On their arrival at the door of the restaurant, Hubert excused himself and saying that he would be back in a few moments, he walked rapidly around the corner. From that moment no trace of him has been found. He was the proprietor of a restaurant in San Francisco and leaves a wife, who is said to be in a destitute condition. Chief of Police Carroll believes that Hubert was seized with a temporary hallucination and circulates describing the missing man have been sent out by the police.

WINE-MAKERS ARE ALARMED

Order Requiring Stills and Fermenting Plants Separated Causes Excitement.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—Wine-makers of Southern California are greatly excited over the information received Saturday that Commissioner Yerkes of the Internal Revenue Department had renewed his former ruling, which previously had been rescinded, to the effect that no distilling could be done on premises where fermenting was carried on for winemaking. Most of the winemakers of this section make sweet wines, requiring brandy for fortification. To provide the necessary brandy they have their own stills. Under this ruling it would be necessary to segregate the stills and the fermenting plants, which, the winemakers say, none but the wealthiest corporations could accomplish. They say also that it would be physically impossible now, as the winemaking season has just begun.

RECEIVES 11,000 VOLTS AND DIES INSTANTLY

SANTA CRUZ, Sept. 10.—The most frightful accident that has occurred here in some time happened at the power house of the Union Traction Company at 1 o'clock last evening when Manuel Regento, an employee of the plant, became entangled in a high voltage electric wire and met his death. Regento was working on some machinery in the plant when he came in contact with the death dealing current, receiving 11,000 volts of electricity, which entered his body near the temple. The only mark of the accident was a small mark on his forehead, the current passing into his body from there. He was separated and who lives at Salinas.

PECULIAR RESULTS OF FALL FROM WAGON

SANTA ROSA, Sept. 10.—Oliver M. Tuttle, a well-known resident of this city, was severely injured Sunday evening while driving through a gate at the Finley hop ranch, near Mark West. He had been handed the lines by the man who had driven him to the ranch, and when the wagon ran into a small side hill the seat, which was broken, gave way and precipitated Tuttle to the ground. His head struck over the eye where the seat was in a broken condition. Tuttle fell on the left side of his head, tearing off a large section of his scalp, and breaking the shoulder blade on the right side. How the injuries could have come on opposite sides as they did is not known, except that the broken shoulder blade may have been caused by concussion.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING ON WAY TO WEDDING

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 10.—During a heavy thunderstorm yesterday Edward Barnes was killed by lightning while riding in a wagon. A boy riding with him was found unconscious. The team of horses lay dead in the road. Wedding guests had assembled in anticipation of the marriage of Barnes, and when he failed to appear at the appointed time search was instituted and his dead body found.

DESERVES JAIL HE ADMITS

Husband of Fulton Berry's Daughter Says Punishment Fits His Actions.

SAUSALITO, Sept. 10.—"I have received precisely what I deserved," said N. C. Goodwin today. He is in jail here facing charges of grand larceny and disturbing the peace. The prisoner is a brother of Jerry Goodwin, millionaire mining man of Yuba, Nev., Nevada county. He holds blameless Fulton Berry, the capitalist and yachtsman of San Francisco. He bitterly assailed Frank Wuchter, a former friend, who, he said, was the cause of his reckless purpose to drink everything in Mill Valley. The Goodwins lived happily in a handsome home in Mill Valley until last week when an attachment was levied upon a blooded horse, and this caused Goodwin to try to smother his money troubles with every intoxicating liquid he could find. "I am solely to blame for the fact that I am in a cell," he said. "My wife was compelled to have me sent here. But she is a good fellow—she always has been too good and has forgiven me." Goodwin told of his belief that when he was arraigned before Justice Renner he would be released at the request of his wife, or at the worst, receive a light punishment. Mrs. Goodwin made a statement which confirms her husband's declaration and at the same time quieted the sensational rumors sent flying by her action. Wuchter, who was visiting here with his wife, said that he had seen Goodwin at the time Goodwin started the wild career that ended in jail. "I am going to jail," said Goodwin, "she said to several callers at the Blithedale Hotel, where she went after the constable took Goodwin to jail. 'It is absurd to say that we have separated,' she said. Last week, according to the story Goodwin told of his trouble, Wuchter came to the Goodwin home, which is a show place in Mill Valley. Several friends accompanied him, and Goodwin showed them a blooded animal, boasting of its qualities as a saddle. Wuchter's first remark. Next day an attachment was served, backed by an overdue note for $500. Goodwin scurried around, but failed to raise enough to lift the attachment. Then he got drunk. He went to his wife and he says that she refused to take up the matter. Mrs. Goodwin summoned a meat dealer, saying that she wished to pay his bill. It was $50 more than her meat account called for. The butcher explained that this was for money lent to her husband. That money was secured by the two diamond rings on which the larceny charges were based. Goodwin says that in his reckless mood he took Mrs. Reynolds' jewels and pledged them.

Our water comes from wells 1400 feet deep.

But we spend more on purity—more time, more skill, more money—than on any other cost of our brewing.

The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous.

The Case of Boodler Wilson.

Speaking of the refusal of Boodler Andrew Wilson to resign from the Railroad Commission at the demand of Governor Gillett, the Stockton Mail says:

"Hieney, Langdon and Spreckels with their big stick forced the most of the San Francisco Supervisors to resign, and there seems to be no good reason why they might not also deliver us from the disgraced Wilson. The only other man who can force Wilson out of office is William F. Herrin, who really put him in. The Sacramento Bee, however, pertinently asks why a single slip should condemn an official who has shown himself to be tractable to his master. The Bee thinks that the Southern Pacific looks upon Wilson as 'a sadder but better man, chastened by adversity, and more disposed to be charitable to transportation companies than he was before election.'"

Wilson was nominated by Abe Ruef and not at the instance of William F. Herrin, who wanted State Senator E. I. Wolfe nominated. Ruef was determined to have Wilson, and as he controlled nine-tenths of the delegates from San Francisco he had his way.

Wilson is free today and holding his office in defiance of the law and public decency because he holds an immunity contract from William H. Langdon. Of course Langdon can make him resign, but declines to do so. Perhaps it is because Wilson is Ruef's man. Then again it may be because Governor Gillett and not Rudolph Spreckels would name his successor in case he was compelled to get out of the office he disgraces. Fortunately the next Legislature will have an opportunity to do some investigating in case Wilson holds on to his office and braves impeachment. Langdon can control Wilson's official acts as Railroad Commissioner. He could not control a successor appointed by Governor Gillett. That is the milk in the cocoanut.

The Chronicle says Taylor is a good man; Ryan is a good man, but it neglects to state which of the two is preferable. Moreover, it speaks as if the choice of a good man for mayor of San Francisco is limited to these two. It does not touch the vital point of whether either one or both is simply a political representative of Rudolph Spreckels and if elected will be merely Spreckels' deputy in office. Availability at this juncture is scarcely determined by the degree of subservency a candidate will render to a boss. The good accomplished by the deposition of Abe Ruef seems to be regarded as negative unless Spreckels be retained as dictator of the city. Apparently the supreme test of fitness to hold office in San Francisco can be summarized in this question: Will he take orders from Rudolph Spreckels? Excommunication and anathema are the penalties of a negative answer. Yet one of the ostensible objects of the graft crusade was to overthrow and obliterate bossism.

Perpetuity of Admission Day.

California's admission to the sisterhood of States in the Union was duly celebrated by the Native Sons and Daughters yesterday throughout the State. It was the fifty-seventh anniversary of an event unique in the history of the republic, for California stands alone among the federated States as the only one which possessed an organized State government and a constitution in full working order before the consent of Congress was obtained. Through its adoption of this course of action, California escaped the probationary experience of a territorial form of government which Congress would have forced it to accept in all probability. It had given proof, however, of its capacity and fitness for self-government in a way that Congress could neither repudiate nor resist.

There never has been a time since when either Congress or the State itself had cause to regret the unusual course which had been taken to induct it into the federation. It has grown steadily in population and developed into one of the wealthiest States in the Union with the proud record that the virgin gold extracted from the beds of its streams and the vein and placer deposits in its hills was instrumental in saving the credit of the nation through that trying period in its history when internecine strife threatened its disruption.

For California, Admission Day is truly the most memorable anniversary it possesses. The Native Sons and Daughters have been the means of bringing it conspicuously to the front and keeping it perpetually green. It grows in importance as the procession of the years goes by, for the ranks of the Native Sons and Daughters increase annually in numbers and in influence. And while the two orders are ostensibly social and fraternal in character, they wield enormous power in the shaping of the political affairs of the State, and will in all probability continue to do so to the end of time. The native sons and daughters of California constitute today its bone and brawn and brains in a superlative sense. They are to be found in all walks of industrial and professional life and in every department of political activity.

The growth of the Native Sons of the Golden West, which was organized by the late General A. M. Winn a little over thirty years ago, has far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its founder. Winn was a faddist who spent many years fruitlessly in an endeavor to organize skilled labor on co-operative lines. But every effort made by him in this direction proved a miserable failure. He finally turned his attention toward organizing, on fraternal lines, the rising generation of young Californians in the middle seventies who were then attaining maturity and beginning to invade the industries and the professions, and although the name of "parlor" which he gave its several subdivisions excited much ridicule, for reasons which were satisfactory to the rugged and practical men of the times, it lived it down, grew apace and compelled respect and admiration. Admission Day was wisely chosen for its annual celebration, and each recurrence of the holiday gave indisputable evidence of increasing strength. If it were possible for the founder of the Native Sons of the Golden West to return to life he would marvel at the growth which his last forlorn hope at fraternal organization has attained and the assurance which exists of its perpetuity. It has not only saved Admission Day from passing into oblivion but it has likewise been instrumental in wresting from oblivion many of the historic associations connected with it and preserving and restoring many of the ancient landmarks of pioneer times.

Jimmy Britt wore red tights in his seance with Joe Gans. The consensus of opinion is that yellow would have been a more appropriate color.

The Native Son showed to better advantage in the parade than in the prize ring on Admission Day.

Canada's Oriental Problem.

The British Columbian anti-Japanese League has produced, through the mobbing of the Oriental quarters at Vancouver Saturday night, a situation which is liable to seriously embarrass Great Britain in her Oriental relations, put her alliance with Japan in jeopardy and increase the long-standing friction between the imperial and Dominion governments. The relations between the latter have been strained for years, growing out of the interference of Downing street, London, in the domestic affairs of the Dominion. One of the bones of contention between them has related expressly to this Oriental question. The British government steadfastly objected, for instance, to any discrimination against the entry on its soil of any nationality on account of race, color or creed. It has carried out this policy without difficulty in the crown colonies. But when British Columbia emerged from that dependent condition on the mother country and entered the confederation of the Dominion of Canada, the central source of authority was transferred to Ottawa. Afterward one of the earliest measures of the provincial government was to place a restraint upon the entry of Chinese by levying a head tax. It took years of agitation and contention, however, before the Dominion government recognized the right of racial discrimination which the provincial persisted in enforcing.

Since the close of the Russian-Japanese war, a new Oriental invasion of the province set in. It has proved as unwelcome to the British Columbians as the unrestrained influx of the Chinese ever was. Efforts have been made to control Japanese immigration through the imposition of a heavy poll tax. These have been unsuccessful, owing to the terms of the Anglo-Japanese treaties regarding the mutual enjoyment by the subjects of the two governments of the freedom of entry within their respective territorial boundaries.

The Columbian opposition to Japanese immigration has assumed an organized form, and this has entered what may aptly be termed "the mob stage." Not since the forcible expulsion of the Chinese from Australia has such scenes of racial rioting been witnessed on British soil as those which occurred in Vancouver last Saturday, when the Oriental quarters were raided by an enraged mob, violence used and much property destroyed.

The outcome of these lawless acts is problematical. Doubtless Japan will make a demand on Great Britain for an explanation and the payment of damages for the property destroyed and for indemnity to cover the outrage done to her subjects. The incident has, however, a more serious aspect than that contained in friendly explanations and the payment of indemnities, inasmuch as it may be taken by the Japanese government as an evidence of insincerity in the British professions of friendship and result in the rupture of the alliance which the two governments formed before the Russian-Japanese war and which they renewed on broader lines after the close of hostilities. Much will depend upon the ability of the imperial government to force the Dominion of Canada to respect its treaty obligations and the ability of the Ottawa government to subdue the British Columbian opposition to an industrial Oriental invasion which threatens to degrade and submerge white labor in the province and to ultimately obtain practical control of it by virtue of superiority of numbers. The problem to be solved has reached an acute stage.

BRIDE MUST HAVE SENSE OF HUMOR

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 10.—"The Bride and Her Dowry" was the subject of a sermon preached recently at the Fairmount Baptist Church by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. McCallum. It being the first of a series on "Glimpses at Married Life."

Among other things, the preacher said: "God intended woman to be the partner, helper and companion of man. The first mention of woman in the Old Book says: 'I will make a helpmeet for him.' The question whether a woman is equal to man or his superior is not the question of the Book."

"Woman was designed to be another sort of man—a being different, endowed with different qualities and possessed of a different set of instincts and sources of emotion."

"Woman was sent because she was needed, not to supplant man, nor to compete with him in any sphere. Her mission is to enable him to attain his best."

INTELLECT THE SAME.

"In the realm of intellect sex is eliminated. Books and statues and paintings, poetry and music know no sex. What is man's and what is woman's no one may tell. But there is a distinct realm where woman is all one."

"The curse of our modern life is that women forsake their legitimate sphere and merely exist in a realm—that is theirs only by assumption. God intended woman to be wives and homemakers, not appendages to machines and creatures of sport and fan-y."

"A woman's dowry should be, not so much money, though there is no objection to money if other qualities exist, but her dowry should be that she should possess:

"First, sympathetic interest in the husband's concerns. This is a hard world. The husband has to battle against falsehood and greed and worry and knavery. The children have their tasks and their cares and sorrows."

"Neighbors have their woes and wants, and the woman who can not or will not place herself in sympathetic contact with husband, children and the world lacks the great essential qualification."

TRAINED MIND NEEDED.
"Again, she should be intelligent and possess a trained mind. A man in the stress of life wants a helpmeet, a partner, not a butterfly nor a painted doll. If he is poor, he wants somebody who knows how to make home attractive, to hang a picture or make a loaf of bread or help him with his problems."

"Often women forget how to dress themselves a year after marriage, and then wonder why the husband is not as attentive as formerly and seeks his companionships elsewhere."

"A woman should possess a sense of humor. Lord deliver any man from a bride who does not number among her dowry a sense of humor."

"And, finally, the bride should be, above all things, a Christian, for women bring to us our highest sense of God and the good and heaven. A good woman is God's best gift to men; a bad woman is a fallen angel."

Woman Should Be Helpmeet of Husband

She Has Been Sleeping Excepting for Short Times for Nearly Month

FLORENCE BENNETT, THE KANKAKEE, ILL., GIRL, WHO IS KNOWN AS THE "SLEEPING BEAUTY," HAS SLUMBERED SINCE AUGUST 19, WITH INFREQUENT WAKING PERIODS OF SHORT DURATION. HER CASE HAS INTERESTED THE NEW YORK SOCIETY FOR PSYCHICAL RESEARCH, MEMBERS OF WHICH ARE NOW AT THE GIRL'S HOME TO OBSERVE THE STRANGE CONDITION. WHILE HALF AWAKE THE GIRL TELLS OF REMARKABLE VISIONS, WHICH SHE DECLARES ARE AS REAL AS LIFE. SHE SEEMS TO BE WANDERING IN A SPIRIT WORLD, AND PSYCHOLOGICAL EXPERTS ARE MYSTIFIED.

MRS. VANDERBILT A LILY AT ODD FETE

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, who has returned after a lengthy stay at Carlsbad for the cure, is stopping at the Hotel de Paris. Mrs. Vanderbilt, who is as much devoted to Paris as any Parisienne, gave a flower dinner party followed by a reception to some friends to celebrate her return.

"FLOWER" TABLES.

The private salons taken by her were turned into beautiful flower gardens in which little tables were arranged. Each table was given up to one flower; there was, for instance, the rose table, the lily table, the dahlia table, the orchid table and so on. Each guest received a notice beforehand of the table he or she would sit at, asking them to dress in a flower costume accordingly.

Mrs. Vanderbilt herself was a lily, her dress being white crepe de chine, with a border of real lilies at the hem of the skirt, and lilies on her breast and in her hair.

The three other ladies at her table also represented lilies, those being Mrs. Charles Carroll, Miss Cochran and Mrs. Hartup McKee. The ladies also chose different flowers as their ornaments and the display of floral novelties was very charming and fantastic.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt is leaving next week for Aix-les-Bains, where she will be followed by her husband, after he has been to Ostend.

COMING OF THE CHILDREN MEANS CHANGES IN HOME

With the advent of the children a new element enters the home, a new transforming power for better or for worse, but a factor that never leaves conditions unchanged.

The mother, absorbed and concentrated in the loving care of her child, which has become so nearly all her world, may let motherhood eclipse the tenderness of wifehood. She may some day wake to realize with a strange sudden tightening of her heart that she is missing certain customary, graceful attentions and caresses—the small coin of love—that the good-bye kiss in the morning is forgotten or becomes perfunctory, and finds many other little beads of attention missing that but a short time ago made bright spots of memory on the golden thread of her daily living.

She may miss the old conferences and confidences and feel in a vague way that it is all his fault, thoroughly unconscious that, on repeated recent occasions when he had told her little cares and worries as of old, tried to win her enthusiasm to some new plan of his, or some new dream of ambition, she had only half heard, her interest was slight, her sympathy unexpressed, her thoughts wandering as she waited for a pause and sidetracked his confidence with the latest instance of the marvelous intellectuality of the baby. She may not realize that the child that began as a real reason for dropping familiar customs and sweet habits, now of thoughtfulness and graceful attentions, has now become but an excuse.

RICH FURNITURE DEALER STAGGERED BY BEAUTY

Lovely Miss Comes In to Buy Chair, Which Takes 'Long Time'—Later Brilliant Wedding Comes.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Miss Mary Balkin, an East Side beauty and second cousin of Miss Anna Held, the actress, became the wife of William Balkin last night at 6 East Central Palace, 12-95 Clinton street. Miss Balkin lived with her parents at 170 Henry street. Mr. Balkin lives at 311 South Fifth street, Brooklyn.

Balkin is a wealthy furniture dealer of Brooklyn. About a year ago Miss Balkin, whose beauty had attracted many when she sold flowers at big charitable affairs, entered the Balkin store. She wanted to buy a chair. Balkin paid more attention to the girl than he did to the selection of the chair. It took him a long—very long—time to select the article. He found out where the girl lived and managed to get an introduction.

For a year the young fellow vied with others as wealthy and eligible as himself for the hand of Miss Balkin. He won finally, and last night the hall was packed while the two young people, standing on a decorated pedestal, were married by Rabbi Cornelius of the Ryerlyan Synagogue. The Misses May, Nollie and Aaron Held, all cousins of the noted actress, were present.

Artist Earle Writes Poem on Predestined Marriage

Kisses
Wife Farewell
Forever

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the wife of the artist in Monroe, N. Y., who says she has agreed to step out of her place in her husband's household and get a divorce in France in order that he may marry another woman, who is already a guest in the house, came to New York last week.

After spending a few hours with Victor Earle, a brother of the artist, at his real estate office, 200 West Seventy-second street, Mrs. Earle arranged final details for her departure on the Holland America line steamer Ryndam.

Ferdinand Earle and the woman he is to wed drove to the station at Monroe with Mrs. Earle in the morning. Earle attended to checking his wife's trunks. When it came time for her to take the train he lightly kissed her farewell. The future Mrs. Earle waved her handkerchief.

The artist allowed interviewers to copy a verse of the poem upon which he has been working for two years. The poem, he said, represented his loftiest views on the subject of divinely predestined marriage. The verse Earle gave out for publication is this:

Love's purest spring is memory's gratitude

From the first kiss of April in the blood,
From the last tear upon its season flood,
From the spirit's ice-bound altitude,
Or from the bosom's deep beatitude,
Uprising like the water lily bud,
Foam white, though nursed in common clay and mud,
The river of true marriage is renewed
And countless brooklets rise as in a dream
And flow beyond the heights of youth.

CENTRAL'S SWEET VOICE WINS HER SWEETHEART

CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 10.—When Miss Claire Cahill of this city and Henry Cochran of Washington, D. C., are married, their wedding day, having been fixed for the latter part of next month, it will be the sequel to a little romance in which the telephone played the leading part.

Until she resigned, a few days ago, to prepare for a wedding, Miss Cahill was night operator for the Bell Telephone Company in this city. About six months ago Cochran, while here on business, had occasion to phone, and Miss Cahill took the call.

"Wonder what she looks like," said Cochran to a friend, after a few words with "Central." "She has a sweet voice. I'll call again." He did several times, and he found "Central" grew sweeter and sweeter to his ear.

Then Cochran burst up a pretext to secure an introduction, and was as much charmed with the young woman's face as he had been with her voice.

The young woman at the Bell exchange said that their next chief won't tell them just when the wedding will be, but she admits that September is the month.

EISTEDDFOB

PRIZES MANY

Large Sum Accrues to Building Fund of Proposed New Church.

Sons of Wales yesterday gathered in the annual Eisteddfof at the Market Street Congregational Church. Both day and night sessions were held. The meeting was under the auspices of the Welsh churches of San Francisco and Oakland and was for the benefit of the building fund of the San Francisco Welsh Church.

The church parlors were crowded, many Welshmen with their families coming from San Francisco and Alameda county.

The Eisteddfof was one of the most successful in years and many hundreds of dollars were added to the building fund of San Francisco's new Welsh church.

The afternoon session opened with the national anthem of Wales, "Hen Wlad Fy Nhadau" ("The Land of My Fathers"), and closed in the evening with the strains of "Mihwyr y Groes" ("The Crusaders"), sung by the male quartet, assisted by chorus.

WHAT IT MEANS.

The Eisteddfof is one of the oldest institutions in Wales. It is the day or week when men, women and children meet in competition in song, story, verse and music. Yesterday in Oakland was no exception and scores mounted the platform in the little church and entertained with song, story or recitation.

The afternoon meeting was in charge of Chairman Rees P. Daniels of San Francisco, while in the evening the Rev. Griffith Griffiths, pastor of the Market Street Congregational Church, presided.

As directed "Mihwyr y Groes" was conducted both meetings. With characteristic humor Mr. Hughes announced the winners of the various competitions and commented thereon.

WINNERS OF PRIZES.

Prizes varying from 50 cents up to $25 were awarded to the successful competitors. Here are the prize winners in the afternoon session of Eisteddfof Stanley Jones, recitation for children under sixteen years of age, "Somebody's Mother"; David Davis, first; Alfred Williams, second, and Thomas Richards, third, in the competition for the best written poetry to "Y Mynydd" ("The Mountains"). Alfred Williams, translation from English to Welsh; G. Williams, recitation, "Cennydd"; "Charge of the Light Brigade"; Edith Williams, solo for children under fifteen years of age, "School Days"; Richard Hughes, Berkeley, translation from Welsh into English; Stanley Jones, second, recitation, "Cleon and I"; J. Phillips, tenor solo, "Yr Hen Gerdor" ("The Old Minister"); Richard Jones, Oakland, essay on the history of the Welsh Church in Oakland and San Francisco; Alfred Williams, first, Thomas Richards, second, writing of English "Elysi" (Ra zor), a peculiar form of Welsh verse. Richard Jones, in accepting the first prize for the best essay on "The History of the Welsh Church in Oakland and San Francisco," turned the money over to Chairman Hughes for the benefit of the building fund of the San Francisco Welsh church.

WELSH AND ENGLISH SONGS.

Miss Laura Lloyd was one of the young women who was awarded a prize for vocal music. Miss Lloyd rendered several selections of old Welsh and English songs.

Additional prizes for the Welsh singing competition were won by Stanley Jones, first prize, for recitation in Welsh.

SUBMIT YOUR PRIZE VOTES BEFORE YOU'RE TOO LATE

GIVE BALLOTS TO HUSTLERS

They Are Issued on Both Old and New Subscriptions.

The names of twelve new contestants for TRIBUNE prizes appear in the list of candidates published today. Not only are there many new contestants, but the vote of the different candidates shows a good gain. It is still early in the contest, and those who are intending to enter should do so before the votes of their friends are promised. The prizes offered are the very best that can be purchased, and they will be awarded to those who enter their names and let their friends know that they intend to win a prize.

VOTES ON OLD AND NEW.
Votes are issued on all paid in advance subscriptions, whether the subscription is an old or a new one. The subscriptions can start at a later date if desired, and those whose subscriptions are already paid in advance can have their new subscriptions start from the date to which their present subscriptions are paid.

J. W. LEONARD ENTERED.
J. W. Leonard, a popular Berkeley policeman, has been entered in THE TRIBUNE'S great $10,000 prize contest, and is a candidate for the $500 building lot to be given to the most popular Berkeley police officers or post office employees. Leonard is known as a hustler, and will make a fine race.

CLASSIFIED AD COUPONS.
An innovation in voting contests is the issuing of votes on classified advertisements. A coupon book containing coupons to the value of $2.50 are sold for $2. This is a saving of twenty cents on each dollar, and will prove a great investment for those who advertise. Classified advertisements are such as "Help Wanted," "For Sale," "Rooms to Rent," etc. These classified advertisement coupons can be used at the time the books are bought, or at a later date as desired by the purchasers.

USE YOUR VOTE COUPONS.
The coupons which appear in THE TRIBUNE each day are good for only a limited time, and must be received by the contest department before the expiration of the date printed on them. You should vote the coupons you have been saving for your favorite candidate. If you delay the expiration date will pass, and they will be of no benefit to anyone.

ANOTHER BOY'S BICYCLE.
According to its usual liberality in adding prizes, THE TRIBUNE is glad to announce the addition of another bicycle to be awarded to the boy receiving the second highest number of votes in the district east of Grove street. New boys, this gives you two chances to obtain a bicycle. The second bicycle will be one of the best $50 wheels on the market. If you want a wheel this is the time to get in and win a prize. A little work after school will bring you what you have wanted. Interest the scholars at your school in your success, and you will find how easy it is to obtain a fine bicycle.

J. W. LEONARD.

MANNER OF VOTING.

A coupon good for one vote will be published in each issue of THE TRIBUNE until the end of the contest. This coupon, if clipped and sent to the Contest Manager of THE TRIBUNE will count as one vote for the contestant named therein.

There is another and better way of securing votes and that is on subscriptions. Votes will be given on all paid-in-advance subscriptions as follows:
Three months, $1.85, 100 extra votes
Six months, $3.50, 300 extra votes
One year, $7.00, 1000 extra votes
Three hundred votes are also issued on a classified advertisement coupon book, which contains coupons worth $2.50 but sells for only $2.00.

NOMINATION COUPONS.

Millinery Opening

Wednesday, Sept. 11—Thursday, Sept. 12—Friday, Sept. 13

A Brilliant Display of Charming Hats for Fall and Winter Wear

An exhibition that will delight women seeking individuality and exclusiveness.

Almost every European and American milliner of note has contributed to the collection. And the artistic fingers of our own talented designers have created hundreds of original models that compare favorably with their more costly rivals from the East and over the sea.

You are most cordially invited to this great show of beauty.

The New Hats at a Glance

Originality is the keynote—then common sense. Genius has had full sway this season. Every artist has followed her own bent. It was an open competition of ideas and skill, with no curbs of "periods" or revivals of old styles or straining after the historical. Result—the hats are fascinating almost beyond belief.

The stunning and picturesque large hats with drooping brims are immensely popular—the more conservative medium shapes are also in high favor. The different shades of leather, the purple tones, myrtle and navy will be the most widely worn of the new colors—black hasn't lost an iota of its popularity. Ostrich plumes are much in evidence—the other trimmings that will be in greatest demand are fancy feathers, very large wings, pompons, velvet foliage, roses, aigrettes, ribbons and the new "fluffy ruffle" feathers.

We have planned to largely increase our already immense millinery business this fall, and no effort has been spared to make our opening a notable success.

WON'T ADMIT WIFE'S ATTACK

Mystery Surrounds Alleged Assault on Girl Wife of Aged Goldfield Man.

GOLDFIELD, Sept. 10.—Mystery surrounds the alleged attack last Saturday afternoon on a young woman, who is said to be the wife of Major W. A. Stanton. The victim is supposed to have been attacked on the Diamondfield road near the Kinkaid mill. The police claim to have no clue to the identity of the woman's assailant, and every effort has been made to suppress the facts. Major Stanton declares with considerable emphasis that his wife was not attacked and was not in the neighborhood of the scene of the outrage on Saturday. According to an employee at the transfer station, beyond Columbia, Mrs. Stanton passed the office about noon, walking north. An hour later, Mrs. Stanton was brought back to the station by a man named Gray, in an almost fainting condition. He had found her almost overcome, he said, nearly a mile down the road. She was carried to the station and Dr. Ryan of Goldfield was telephoned for and she was taken to her home.

HAD BEEN CHOKED.
According to her rescuer and the employees at the sub-station, Mrs. Stanton bore the marks of fingers on her throat and said that she had been choked. She did not talk intelligibly and refused to give an account of the attack. A member of the local police force substantiated the story of the employees of the power company, but would not admit that the woman was Mrs. Stanton. "The woman was choked," he said, "and bore every appearance of having been handled roughly."

It is rumored about town that Mrs. Stanton has left her husband, but the rumor could not be verified yesterday. The marriage of Major Stanton, 64 years old, to 18-year-old Blanche Wye in Los Angeles about six weeks ago created quite a stir. The mother of the girl stopped the wedding almost at the steps of the altar, but afterward gave her consent to the marriage.

STEINWAY AND OTHER PIANOS

VICTOR TALKING MACHINES

In Every Sale of a Steinway Piano the Buyer Gets the Greater Profit

—The dollars received for a Steinway Piano but partially express our profit in selling. We profit in your complete satisfaction; in the knowledge that we give you much more than your money will buy in any other line of trade, and in the assurance that beyond intrinsic value, the Steinway Piano carries with it the priceless means and opportunity for the highest musical culture. The actual margin of money profit in Steinway sales is very small, much smaller than comes from the sale of any other piano, so small that we are continually saying the Steinway Piano is the lowest-priced piano ever made. Every fair-minded person that knows music acknowledges that Steinway value to music lovers cannot be computed in dollars.

PLAYS AT THE THEATERS

"The Girl I Left Behind Me" at
Ye Liberty Playhouse
This Week.

A large holiday crowd enjoyed the performance of "The Girl I Left Behind Me" at Ye Liberty Theater last night. The play is a typical early Belasco work—a regular pot-pourri of comedy, tragedy and melodrama. As a drama, to the dramatist or critic it cannot stand investigation. It has no class, cannot be analyzed but it pleased the audience and made some critics forget or at least overlook bad technique. Mounted in fine style, well cast and faithfully presented, it was thoroughly enjoyed from the raising of Old Glory in the first scene to the close. The audience, always patriotic in Oakland and cheered, laughed and cried as the talented Belasco players depicted army life on the frontier. The scenes are laid in the Black Foot country in Montana and treats of the love affairs of Kate Kannon, the daughter of an American pioneer. Extra few takes this character and gives a strong personality. Miss Jewel is a truer of strength to the company. She has a fine presence and her natural and vigorous acting as the sister of the daughter stamps her as an actress of no mean ability and able to do stronger work than she has yet been called to do here. At the close of act three she gave the scene an artistic touch of dramatic finesse that brought down the house and with Lander Stevens gained several curtain calls. Stevens carried the role of the hero in a style that delights the melodramatic lover. George Cooper as Wilbur Ann a frontier girl gave a distinct personality to the character. Her scenes with George Friend were very funny. Madeline Maxwell was well needed on account of her prominence in THE TRIBUNE Carnival queen contest. Cast as Lucy Hawksworth she proved the source of her popularity with a vivacious and intelligent delineation of the role. Miss Maxwell's popularity is well deserved. She is a conscientious worker, pretty, winsome and always acceptable. A love scene with Jack Sheehan as Private Jones made one of the highlights of the play. Mr. Sheehan played well and with Miss Maxwell made a splendid piece of play. George P. Webster and Henry Shuman did well in their respective roles and Fawn afraid an Indiana girl was given proper emphasis by Estelle Ward. Next week the old favorite "Too Much Johnson" will be presented.
MACKAY SUTHERLAND

THE COLUMBIA
The Girl From Paris opened for the second week at the Columbia Theater last night and considering the counter attractions that the popular show house had to play against a good sized house packed the opening night. The company, which the management has gathered together worked in perfect harmony last night and gave every evidence of making the second week even more successful than the first. The Girl From Paris seems peculiarly suited for the talents of the stars of the company and each is seen at their best. Sybil Page as Julia Bon Bon is exceptionally clever and her rendition of the very young Parisian beauty is nearly perfect. That always funny man Ben T. Dillon is good and makes much of a part that many actors would fail in. Sam Kidman is funny. He has a laugh that has never been heard on an Oakland stage and when Sam laughs it is the signal for the entire audience to follow. Sidney De Grey remains a favorite and has proven a great strength to the company. The chorus with the advantage of the first weeks practice worked in perfect harmony and the show should be a much better success than it was last week.

AT THE NOVELTY THEATER
Ringling Brothers Circus and all the other attractions of yesterday's holiday seemed not to distract the crowds from the Novelty Oakland's popular vaudeville theater. The show this week is certainly the best yet. The performance starts off with The Chauffeurs Trio. Hume Cain and Hooey comedians and vocalists. Their act has an excellent finish in the rendering of the school song. Lew Simmons and Lew Piziel offer one of those old time colored acts that has a laugh in every line. Simmons and Piziel are well known minstrel men. The Three Kibbers offer one of the best roman ring acts seen in this city for some time. The young lady members of the trio is certainly a clever child performer and contortionist. Miss Martie Tandon a singing comedienne has a most fetching way of singing her songs that get her encore after encore. Ralph S. Cummings and company of players present a most delightful comedy sketch that is said to be the best laughing act in vaudeville. Two new reels of comic and sensational motion pictures make up an altogether attractive program that will no doubt attract many to the Novelty this week. Brindemour is underlined for an early appearance at the Novelty.

BELL THEATER
The Bell Theater program this week includes clever vaudeville acts. The performance is decidedly interesting with only one possible weak spot, and the audience should not be disappointed.

MARRIAGE WORLD'S GREAT CRIME, SAYS SCIENTIST

Professor Edgar Larkin Declares Anglo-Saxon Race Must Perish if Present Social Condition Continues.

"The marriage for life is the greatest crime that can be committed in the world, from either a physiological, psychological or anthropological point of view; and the third party, who joins a man and a woman in a marriage for life, whether he acts in civil or religious procedure, or a witness to the contract, is the greatest criminal in the world."

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—No hasty, thoughtless comment this, but the conclusion reached after twenty years' meditation on matrimony by Professor Edgar Larkin, astronomer from Mount Lowe, Southern California, and first given to the world last night at a lecture before the Sociological Society in this city.

Professor Larkin's startling views on matrimony were closely interwoven with his no less startling statement that the production of the race should be limited and that the Government should aid rather than hinder, the distribution of literature of an advisory nature.

VIEWS ARE CHEERED.
Professor Larkin warned his auditors as to what was coming by stating that his remarks were to be of such a revolutionary nature that those who might be shocked by hearing them could leave the room. Some took the lecturer at his word and left, but the great majority remained, and when Professor Larkin spoke the above quoted words cheered him heartily. His audience was evidently in sympathy with many of his views. Larkin said in part:

"Ninety-five per cent of the crimes in the world are due to marriage for life, a contract that must be abolished. In time, if this contract continues, the Anglo-Saxon race will be wiped out."

TWO DUTIES OF MAN
"To repeat every law, physiological, psychological or anthropological, is violated, and nature's laws cannot be broken without punishment. In nature there is no such word as forgiveness, she is deaf, dumb, blind and neutral. There are only two duties for man to follow: to learn the laws of nature and to obey them. These principles, which I am presenting to you, are as fixed and as immutable as the science of mathematics and no one would think of disputing that."

"I know what I am talking about, for aside from my study of these matters, it has been proven to me that I am right. I have asked and received letters from 100 women in the United States, women who are talented, intellectual and college bred, and they tell me I am right. My own mother tells me I am right, in all these statements."

"All the trouble and crime in the world is caused by man, who is the lawbreaker. When women make laws much wrong will be done away with. Finland is the only civilized country; she has eighteen women in Congress, who have a controlling voice in the laws."

EXALT YOURSELF.
"There is nothing in the great visible world that shows a great controlling power no great mind with human attributes. It is foolish beyond measure for individuals therefore, to worship or exalt something as being above them. Let them exalt themselves. The study of Nature's laws is the only thing to do and know, and there are obstacles to that. Our Government has said that some literature should not go through the mails, but that is just what should go, and be taught."

Professor Larkin did not offer a substitute for the home as it is at present understood, nor did he explain why marriage is the cause of the troubles he is trying to end.

CARNIVAL QUEEN CONTEST

Register One Vote FOR

For Queen of The Alameda County Exposition and Carnival

(Deposit coupons in ballot boxes at Owl Drug Stores in Oakland.)

Alameda County's victory at the State Fair in the winning of the first prize of $500 is only a suggestion of the splendid exhibition of her resources that will be seen in the great skating rink during the industrial fete that will open on September 22. If a creditable exhibit, and one that attracted the attention of the judges, was possible at Sacramento, here at home, with limitless reserves to draw upon, the merchants, manufacturers and farmers of the county will have the opportunity to exploit the capabilities of their section to the full extent.

The exposition alone will be a show worth coming many miles to see, but it will be only a feature of the big carnival by which the people of the county will entertain their thousands of visitors for the two weeks following the inaugural ceremonies.

QUEEN CONTEST.
In the contest for queen of the festa only a few days more are required to determine the names of the nine winners from as many different communities. The vote is increasing in every district, for the girls realize that their friends must work hard at this critical period.

Out in Pleasanton, Miss Hazel Heller is leading with a considerable distance between her and the next on the list. In the contest that covers Niles, Decoto, Irvington, Centerville and Newark, Miss Harriet Dassel of Niles is first in the balloting and Miss Hazel Dennis of the same town second. The friends of the girls are on the hunt for coupons however, and there is no telling which town will bring its candidate out ahead.

FEAR ADDED STARTER.
In this city the uncertainty of a new candidate coming into the contest at the very last is prevalent. Even the girls who are leading by large margins do not feel secure. A number of the young ladies have advanced at a rapid pace but they are haunted by the fear that others whose names now appear far down the list are hoarding their coupons at home.

This morning the carnival committee makes announcement of the following standing of the Oakland Berkeley, Alameda and Fruitvale candidates.

BEATS HIM AND TAKES 60 CENTS

Teamster Stabbed in Side While on Street at Midnight by Robbers.

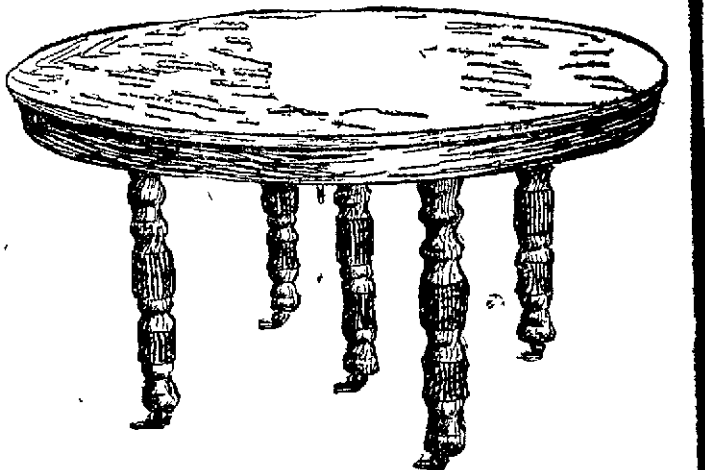

(Special to THE TRIBUNE)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—H. C. Page, a teamster, was held up, beaten and robbed near his home at Potrero and Alameda avenues about midnight. Page was walking along the street in a semi-intoxicated condition when two men set upon him and beat him, and relieved him of sixty cents, all he had in his pocket. An officer removed him to the hospital, where it was found that he had severe wounds about the head and face as well as a knife thrust in the side.

WIDOW ESCAPES MURDER CHARGE

Wealthy Wisconsin Woman Whose Brother-in-Law Was Poisoned is Discharged.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Mary Mallin, a wealthy widow, accused of the murder of her brother-in-law by poisoning, was discharged at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing last night. The court found that there was not sufficient evidence to hold her for trial. The victim, Carl Schmidt, a blind man, died from carbolic acid poisoning at Genoa, Wisconsin, August 21, and it was charged by the State that Mrs. Mallin had administered the poison in order to get rid of him and to bring her sister to live in luxury in the Mallin home in La Crosse.

with the privilege of purchasing, if you choose. Only a manufacturer could make such an offer, that is why you cannot get it anywhere else on the Pacific Coast. This is a special offer for this week only on account of congestion of stock. If you are looking for a bargain in a used piano, at least a $100 saved, and would pay you for going a few blocks out of your way. Here are a few of them to show you:

We also still have a hundred and fifty of the pianos left which were shipped to another house who could not take them on account of shortage of room and lack of funds. These pianos we are closing out at 1/2; 50 were sold last week and we expect the rest of them to go quickly. Your selection is best right now. Think of $500 pianos at $250; $300 pianos at $150, $200 pianos for $100 and even less. Remember these are all brand new pianos just from the depot and we must close them out for the factories to make room for our own stock. That is why it is an unparalleled opportunity, one that we have never heard of in twenty-five years of our business career. The primary cause being the recent strike and shortage of money in San Francisco.

There are still a few second-hand slightly used pianos to select from. The following are the names and prices:

One Knabe	$178	Four Singers; regular price $250 to $400; now	$90 to $190

CHAMPION RETAINS HIS TITLE IN SHORT FIGHT

JIMMY BRITT DEFEATED IN DISAPPOINTING BATTLE

Injury in Left Hand Causes Native Son to Stop—Had No Chance to Win at Any Time.

By EDDIE SMITH.

The only thing that can be said of the Britt-Gans contest is that it is too bad that an accident should mar the sport that five or six thousand people had gathered to see.

No crowd ever gathered in the arenas of ancient times excelled the crowd which jammed its way into the Pacific Coast League grounds yesterday to witness the contest with padded fists between the champion lightweight of the world and the proud Native Son, whose ambition for years has been to be the lightweight champion.

The combat was of an entirely different character than that which drew forth the crowds in old times, and the moving pictures, the modern methods of handling the crowd and the padded hands of the gladiators reminded one that the sport was one of modern times.

Enthusiasm never ran higher or the thrill of excitement was never greater at the ancient games than it was yesterday, however, and just when the great majority of those present had settled themselves down to witness what they had come to see—Jimmy Britt knocked out—the curtain was run down by "Spider" Kelly stepping to the center of the ring waving a white handkerchief as the signal of defeat.

EXCITEMENT CHILLED.

The thrill of excitement left the enthused crowd with lightning like rapidity and disappointment and disgust took its place. The great majority fully expected to see Britt beaten, but, like the writer, had also expected that the contest would be a thrilling one and that the Native Son, with the renewed fighting power that he displayed with "Batting" Nelson, would give the colored wonder a hard battle to maintain his acknowledged supremacy over the lightweight pugilist.

BRITT A DISAPPOINTMENT.

The fact that Britt injured his hand and announced that he was unable to continue was not the only thing disappointing to the crowd; his inability to connect with the colored man with his punches was also a big factor. Britt at no time, with the exception of the first round, when he landed a left hook to the head and caught Gans slightly off his balance, apparently staggering him, was able to land solidly on the champion, and his left hook for the body, that was expected to worry the champion, was easily blocked; and it was while trying to land one of these punches that his wrist came in contact with the sharp elbow of the negro, which disabled that member to such an extent that the pride and gameness of the local boy were forced to lower their colors to an enemy that he would have given most anything in life to have beaten.

BRITT'S INJURY.

It is claimed that Britt injured his hand in the fourth round and that the pain was so severe that he was unable to use the hand in the fifth round. A description of the last two rounds of the contest will somewhat bear the Britt out in this claim, for it will be noticed that the writer, in sending from the ring-side the description of the rounds, has only mentioned twice in the fifth round that Britt tried with the left, while all during the contest the number of times Britt tried with the left for the head and body was numerous in each round.

It is also noticed that in the fourth round Britt took a chance with the right for the first time during the contest, and landed with telling effect on the negro's body.

If the hand was hurt in the fourth round, however, it must have been hurt near the end of the round, for Jimmy used it too often during that round to have it hurt very badly.

During the fifth round the local boy led twice with the supposed sore hand; he missed the first time and was blocked next time with the ever-ready sharp elbow of the champion.

BRITT LOOKED BEATEN.

When Britt went to his corner after this round he had every appearance of a beaten boxer, and when he sat in his corner he opened his mouth and leaned forward, and the crowd howled, "He's vomiting." While Britt made a dash for the ring, and grasping Jimmy's hand he called to some one in the audience, and Dr. Sullivan then stepped onto the ring platform and after a hasty examination it was announced that Britt had fractured his left hand and was unable to continue.

THE INJURY.

The Native Son was then led from the ring, while the dusky champion, with disgust plainly visible on his face, left the ring apparently as fresh as he entered it. After Britt reached the dressing room he was followed by several doctors. Dr. Sullivan at the time the writer gained an admission was dressing the injured arm and announced that he reduced the fracture before the fight left the ring.

Dr. Apple and L. R. Ellis then examined the injury, and although they did not say it was a fracture, they seemed to agree with the attending physician. Dr. Rosenkrantz, who has been Gans' physician, examined the hand and announced that he did not think it was a fracture; when asked if he thought that the arm was hurt, however, he said that there was not the slightest doubt but that the hand was hurt, and hurt badly.

WRITER'S OPINION.

The writer, not being a physician, cannot give expert testimony, but to me it looked as if the doctor from the Gans camp had about hit the nail on the head. It is my opinion that Britt's left was hurt, and perhaps hurt to the extent that he was unable to use it. In such case he cannot be blamed for stopping, for without the left Britt is like a ship without a sail, and to bow to the inevitable was only good judgment when it was apparent that the white boy could not go on much longer.

The thumb was badly swollen, but judging from the difference in the abilities of the two men, it was a good thing for Britt that his hand was hurt. Gans out-chased the native boy at every angle of the game.

Generally when two men meet, one of the men, even though he may be excelled in cleverness, will show some one strong point that would make it appear that he had it on his opponent at that particular thing, but in this contest Gans had every thing on Britt and, as the writer said last week, he towered over the local boy in cleverness as the tall buildings of San Francisco tower over the temporary shacks at their side.

GANS DETERMINED.

The sound of the gone seemed like music to the ears of Gans, and he went to the center of the ring with a satisfied expression, and the very first thing he did was to start at the left eye of the local boy with the left-hand jab. The punch did not look like a hard one, but at the end of the contest it was noticed that Britt's eye was discolored and that he showed the marks of that snappy left. The jab had discouraged regularity of landing just when Britt was settling himself for a hard blow and time and again Jimmy was pushed off his balance by that left.

BRITT MISSED OFTEN.

Britt missed the colored fighter so often that there is little wonder that he became discouraged and was willing to stop. The clever negro in the five rounds fought miss'd Britt just once, when he hit a hard right punch go for the head in the fifth round, and the think of missing the mark was such a new one to him that he stepped back and laughed.

The fight was simply like a master giving a pupil a lesson. The pantherlike negro landed at will and each time that his right shot through the smallest kind of openings it landed right on the point of Britt's jaw.

Gans not being a man that knocks an opponent out with one punch, did not bring the Native Son down, but the systematic punning that he was dealing out was slowly but surely beating the white boy into submission.

BRITT'S HOOK USELESS.

In the mixture where it was expected that Britt would be able to land with his left hook, which he used on Nelson with such good effect, he had not the slightest chance. Gans slipped in and out of the range of the blows of his opponent as easily as though he was playing with a child.

EASY VICTORY.

At long range boxing, Britt, with every effort of the left, pulled his hand back before letting it go for the body. This acted as a sort of wireless telegraphy to the trained eye of the champion, and by the time that the punch reached the region of his stomach he found either a sharp elbow there to block it or by some quick move the colored man had slipped away and space was the only thing left to land on.

Interesting Notes About Racing Matter By LEE DEMIER

Charles D. Durnell will make an effort to get a first-class race out of Sir Willard this fall. Sir Willard is the Ossary colt with which Durnell expected to win the Ascot Park Derby a year ago last winter, before his trouble with McElvally got him in disfavor with the Pacific Coast racing folk. After his trouble Sir Willard was brought East and sold at public auction. He was bought by Roy Rainey for $10,000 and turned over to Bob May train. He won a race at Belmont Park a year ago last Spring and then fell lame. He went lame again on William Garth at Benning's last Spring and was sent to Garth's Ingleside Farm to rest up. He only recently came up from the farm. Durnell is not sure he can do anything with Sir Willard. A big horse that goes wrong is hard to bring around. It is safe to predict that no man will have much luck with a horse two such skilful horsemen as May and Garth have turned down.—New York Telegraph.

Jockey Lee is resting up in Kentucky until the opening of the Lexington meeting.

The remains of the late Robert Pinkerton was laid to rest in Graceland Cemetery, Chicago.

Theodore Hemingway and Jake Phillips, two horsemen racing at the half-mile track in New Orleans, after arguing over the respective merits of Maleddion and Baleshah, concluded to run the horses a mile for $500 a side. They talked it over some more and "pressed the bet." Phillips wagering his mare Leda against Hemingway's gelding Ranco, that Baleshah would beat Maleddion. The race was run last Saturday and Baleshah won by half a length.

Trainer Tom Cook came up from the Baldwin ranch to taken in the Britt-Gans fight. The big trainer said that there are fifty men and teams working on the new race track at Arcadia.

LONG DEFEATS M'LOUGHLIN IN DEL MONTE TOURNAMENT

Challenger Wins From Great Player in Most Interesting Racquet Match of Tournament.

DEL MONTE, Sept. 10.—Maurice McLoughlin, Miss Florence Sutton and Bobby Strachan won the coast singles tennis championships here yesterday. The tennis was the best ever seen in the challenge matches of a championship tournament.

In the challenge match for the men's championship McLoughlin, the challenger, disposed of Melville Long, the champion, in the most interesting match I have ever seen. Both played a hard, gritty game, and it was either player's match until the last point was won, despite the fact that McLoughlin led at 5 to 0 in the final set.

Long played a marvelous game in the early part of the first set. He volleyed seemingly impossible chances and seemed to have McLoughlin at his mercy. With the score 2 to 4 against him, McLoughlin played gritty tennis, and to the surprise of the many enthusiasts, ran out three straight games, which brought the score to 5 to 4 in his favor. Then started one of the longest see-saw sets on record in the championship match. Each had lost four service games up to this time. Long then evened up matters on his own service at 5 to 5. At 6 to 5 on McLoughlin's service, Long led at 30-0, but McLoughlin finally won the game with the score 6-5 in his favor. Twice McLoughlin led at 40-15 on the next, but two double faults cost her the game. Again, at 4-4, Miss Hotchkiss led at 4-0, but fell down on "easy chances," and then lost the set at 6-4. The second set was close throughout. Miss Sutton won, 6-3.

Bobby Strachan created an upset in the finals of the junior singles by winning a five-set match from Harold Getz. The latter won two of the first three sets and led at 4-3 and 30-0 on the fourth. The complete score of the match was 6-3, 7-9, 2-4, 7-5.

GANS MERELY TOYS WITH BRITT AND WINS FIGHT

Native Son Makes Claim of Injured Arm at End of Fifth Period and Welsh Gives Gans the Decision.

By T. P. MAGILLIGAN.

While the big crowd that filled into the baseball park in San Francisco yesterday afternoon to witness the Britt-Gans fight smirked somewhat of those circus days of that Caesar's Rome, there was none of that subsequent action in the battle itself which caused that gore-hungry crowd to vent its gore-cherishing emotions in culminating blood-curdling Comanche yells, which generally are the hand maidens of hand to hand combats in San Francisco.

It's not in human nature to applaud and hunk fracture one's self when the action is one-sided, and if a battle was ever one-sided that little affair between Gans and Britt surely was.

Yesterday morning the writer saw a great tawny cat make merry in its purr-fy way with a bedraggled mouse.

His tawny catship played with his unfortunate prey reluctant to lose a moment of his catship sport, and it was only when that reluctant spark called life had winged itself from its mousey harbor that the feline said its hearty catship grace over a purrful breakfast of mouse.

This figure of "cat and mouse" fits the picture of the Gans-Britt fight in San Francisco yesterday afternoon.

Not once in that brief battle did Britt have any more chance of victory than did the poor little mouse with his tawny catship.

Fortunately or unfortunately—look at it from your own view-point—the fight was brought to an unheralded close after five rounds of fighting.

Before the gong clanged for the sixth round, Britt made claim that he had broken his left arm, and his seconds in token of defeat shied a towel into the ring, refused a Jack Welsh, mentioned in dramatic manner towards the corner occupied by the ebullient Gans in token of victory, and another pugilistic picture in Sepia had been painted to the dissatisfaction of those who bent their pugilistic way to the bull mark.

CROWD SURPRISED.

The body of the crowd could only see the pantomime and it was not until announcer Billy Jordan informed them in stentor voice of the proceedings, that it dawned upon them that it was all over, and that a new chapter had been written in the doleful book of pugilism.

To say that the fight was a good one would be overshooting the mark. To say that it was a fight at all would be merely indulging in mental gymnastics for which the writer has no head. The black Gans laced the white Britt, until that gentleman was sick and sore weary of his uneven contest, and despairing of any chance for victory his seconds came to his rescue and stopped the slaughter.

Gans merely made play of Britt. Jimmy fought gamely and doughtily while it lasted, and to those at the ringside, it looked as though he would go down with his colors, when the "arm" incident sprung into being.

Britt was but a tyro in the masterful hands of Gans. The ebullient pugilist laced him with every and storm of blows that had the Native Son struck down when the end of the fifth round was reached.

GANS A MASTER.

The Baltimorean wasted no effort. He went about his work like an engineer laying out a bit of road bed, he measured his man faultlessly, and the dull thump of Gans' gloves against Britt's head and face felt like hail storm on a far roof.

Gans would wait an opportunity, and as soon as he presented himself his hand would shoot through the air, hissing and spluttering with the rage of a snake and with much of the venom and bite of a viper in it.

Gans directed his blows with the force and precision of a file driver, and the wonder was that Britt stood up so well under the onslaught.

BRITT NON PLUSED.

Previous to the fight there was much talk of Gans' right hand being injured, but this was only a device to make Gans look like a man with no more damaging effect than the beating of the rain on a duck's back.

Gans had prepared a beautiful defense for Britt's best blow. He formed a sort of portulaca of his elbows that he dropped every time Britt tried to send his fists to a roaring place on Gans' stomach. This defense that Gans had formed was the undoing of Britt, for when Britt tried for an overpowering blow at the negro's stomach, the arm found rest on that adamantine elbow of the negro's with the result that it put Jimmy's left arm out of commission and he had to quit fighting.

The fight served one purpose, if none other, to heighten and emphasize the fact that Gans is perfect in his realm. He is as much without rivalry as was Alexander when he wept those litigating tears over the paucity of world's to conquer.

"Gans is in a class by himself." "No one has a chance with him." "His!"

These and sundry remarks fell from the lips of those who know the fighting game in all its phases, can size up a fighter, and can compare them with nifty and precision.

And surely there is no man living to-day, anywhere near the weight of the great ebullient pugilist who has a chance to accomplish the downfall of this great pugilist.

TEDIOUS WAIT.

There was a long and tedious delay before the men entered the ring. They were scheduled to enter at 8 o'clock, but the fight did not commence until nearly one hour and a half after the scheduled time.

The delay was occasioned by Ben Selig Gans' manager, who insisted on seeing Gans' right hand before he would let Gans go into the ring.

As soon as this was done a figure clad in a green bathing gown with a white leaf emblem emerged from the club house.

The cry of "Gans is coming!" "Gans is coming!" broke from a thousand throats and swelled in volume until the negro took his seat in his corner.

Britt was very little behind him. He wore a white and pink bath robe. After the usual introductions, Billy Jordan's "let 'er go" fell like sweet music on the ears of the thousands present, and the fight was on.

Before the action was very old, Britt slipped in a left hand punch to Gans' head which hurt the negro, but did not discommode him. Gans wiped the spot with his gloved hand and smiled at Britt. That was the most damaging blow that Britt landed.

Then Gans took the whip hand and had Britt stepping back at a lively pace, but the Native Son never seemed able to get away from those hissing punches of Gans.

The rounds were a repetition of the other. Gans did all the forcing and all of the real fighting. Britt stood up gamely enough, but he was no where near a match for Gans at any angle of the game.

A few women, probably a half dozen, were in attendance. These fair Julietts seemed to enjoy the sport, although the writer cannot now, and could never see, under what pretext prize fight promoters either encourage or permit women other than the immediate members of the principal's household, to attend a prize fight. It is very far from a woman's sphere, in this rugged and business-like game, to be edifying even to those whose gentlemen who attend all the fights, to see women in their midst. It's neither a woman's sport nor a minor's sport and the sooner the prize fight promoters put the ban on women at prize fights the better it will be for the game and the fair fame of the city of San Francisco.

After the battle, there was a sad reunion of the two men in the dressing room. Jimmy was very much downcast, but Willie was almost frantic with grief. Britt had confidence before the battle that he would win, and was confident even in the opening period, but it did not take him long to see that it was a case of misplaced confidence.

Statement by Joseph Gans

"There isn't much for me to say about a fight. My word in the ring is my statement. I don't think that any sane man inside the gates had any doubt that I would win from Britt without any trouble, even if the bout had gone on. He didn't get up as good a fight against me as Kid Herman did in Nevada on last New Year's day. I've no doubt that he had a right against me as well, but if he had four arms and nothing was the matter with any one of them, I would have been able to beat him. I wasn't hurt at all. I was in perfect condition, and with a little rest-up and a good meal, I was just right for Nemie in Los Angeles later in the month. I feel sorry for him, but if the score of 2 to 1 had been stopped just where it was he would have been punished pretty badly. I would have been beaten by the knock-out route, as sure as I am from Baltimore."

Statement by Jimmy Britt

"My hand didn't do me any damage. My hand went back on me, and what was the use of being killed? It was injured in the fourth round, and after that it was of no use to me. That was the reason I kept backing around the ring. All I want is another chance at Gans. I can't beat him. I don't want a cent of money if I don't lick him. A fight with Gans would be a home town event, and as soon as this hand is so that I can use it, I will be after him. There was very much what I said. They wouldn't let me go on, and I suppose that was the best. I will be back in the ring, and then I will surprise the people."

Stockton Wins Double Header

STOCKTON, Sept. 10.—The Stockton State leaguers took two more games from San Francisco yesterday. The contests were so ragged and one-sided that even the most ardent fans of the visiting team, Morarity and Campbell of the infield made great assistance to Henderson.

In the first contest the visitors were shut out. In the last game the San Francisco rallied and made a run on one hit in the second inning, but were home again by the knock-out route, as sure as I am from Baltimore."
